Getting Started with Credo Reference

We can search by keyword for a topic.

We will look at Concept Maps later in this guide. This is a great brainstorming tool.

The screenshot shows the Credo Reference search interface. At the top, there are three tabs: 'Search' (highlighted in blue), 'Image Search', and 'Concept Map'. To the right of these tabs, it says 'Searching 3,399,642 full text entries in 560 reference books'. Below the tabs is a search bar with the text 'Search for e-commerce' and a 'SEARCH' button to the right.

We can even search for entries with images. You can copy the images to use in your projects or presentations. Be sure to cite them!

Here is the number of books included in Credo. Sometimes you will see this number increase!

You can also search for Topic Pages, browse by book, use Advanced Search, or explore a Concept Map.

Topic Page: Autism

One of a spectrum of disorders defined by difficulties in communication and social interaction. The symptoms may be present from birth or may develop in early childhood, around the third year. In rare cases, autistic individuals may show extraordinary talents in some areas, for example music, arithmetics, or drawing, but most will have learning difficulties. The causes of autism are unknown, but it is thought to involve a number of environmental and genetic factors affecting the development of the child's brain. Special education may bring about some improvement.
